

Specific provisions before 2010 year-end federal legislative activity	After 2010 year-end legislative activity
Build America Bonds (BABs) Allowed issuance of bonds (until Dec. 31, 2010) bearing federally taxable interest but subsidized through federal tax credit payments that enabled state and local governments to issue debt attractive to purchasers who were not themselves taxpayers, thereby increasing the supply of bond buyers and pushing down their yields.	Efforts in 2010 tax legislation to extend the BABs program beyond Dec. 31, 2010 sunset date failed. New issuances of BABs are not allowed in 2011. There may be efforts in the new U.S. Congress to resurrect the BABs program in a revised format, but prospects are speculative.
AMT exemption for Private Activity Bonds: Interest on private activity bonds (PABs) issued in 2009 and 2010, including bonds that refunded prior bonds (if originally issued during 2004 - 2008), were exempted from Alternative Minimum Tax (AMT) preference calculations for individual owners. Corporate owners were permitted to omit this interest in calculating their current earnings adjustment.	Not extended beyond Dec. 31, 2010 sunset. Tax-exempt interest on PABs issued after 2010 is a tax preference item for AMT purposes. This affects industrial revenue bonds and other PABs, but not governmental bonds or qualified 501(c)(3) bonds. Corporate owners include such interest in calculating their current earnings adjustment.
Bank Deductibility and Holding Subject to Dec. 31, 2010 sunset, allowed more bonds to be bank qualified (BQBs) & hence not subject to interest deduction disallowance for bank holders, by increasing $10,000,000 annual issuance limitation on issuer's BQBs to $30,000,000 and treating 501(c)(3) conduit borrowers as direct issuers of BQBs. Banks also were allowed to invest up to 2% of their assets in tax-exempt bonds without a portion of that interest expense deduction being disallowed under §265 of the Internal Revenue Code (IRC).	These provisions were not extended beyond Dec. 31, 2010 sunset date. Bonds issued after 2010 are subject to the old BQB rules. This includes reverting to the $10,000,000 annual issuance limitation, and counting qualified 501(c)(3) bonds issued after 2010 against the governmental issuer's limit.
